

Abstract

A system and method for using a smart card provided by a bank and available through a mobile telephone service provider in one branded service for use on a secure merchant network accessible through a mobile telephone whereby a consumer may obtain a single-branded smart card from the mobile telephone service provider and subsequently purchase goods and services through such a network using the smart card, and whereby the bank account or other account associated with the smart card is debited.